MORE THAN 20 VICTIMS

Three Bodies Discovered Near Pittsburgh Revive Case After Quiet Period.

(By Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH—Police officials of two states, taunted 10 years by a mad butcher who has counted his victims at more than a score, mobilized today for a manhunt from Pittsburgh, dumping ground for three more mutilated bodies.

Detectives came from Cleveland, home of the madman's meanderings, as they did from Youngstown, and New Castle, Pa., ports of call in a tour of death that led yesterday to a railroad siding near here where three surgically-sliced headless corpses were found in three boxcars.

The slaughterer's trail, twisted and obscured by perhaps several months of time, apparently traced back to Cleveland, where in the downtown Kingsbury Run section residents for years have been terrorized by a man with a knife who has killed and cut a dozen victims and left them dismembered in city dumps.

The trail seemed to follow the right of way of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroad, which skirts Kingsbury Run, passes along New Castle's murder swamp, burial plot for a half-dozen victims, and then on to Youngstown, whence yesterday's decapitated men ultimately were consigned to the railroad's scrap and reclamation yards here.

Eight Pieces.

Two of the bodies uncovered from crude wrappings had been cut into eight pieces by what morgue attendants said was an expert in the use of a surgeon's

Sun Shines for Derby Day, Nine Seek Race Crown

CHURCHILL DOWNS, Ky.—(U.P.)—The sun was shining brightly today for the 66th running of the Kentucky derby.

The weather was clear the temperature early this morning was 35 and rising and the track was fast.

All nine horses which were entered in the Run of the Roses yesterday were expected to start. The overnight scratch list for the day's meeting read "all go" for the seventh race—the derby.

True Star, only doubtful starter, was scratched from the sixth race, an allowance affair, to take a crack at the big event.

Upwards of 80,000 people thronged Churchill Downs track to watch Bimelech, mighty young thoroughbred and odds-on favorite, carry his vaunted speed against eight rivals in the 66th run for the Roses and a $75,000 purse.

But, with his fifth derby victory considered a certainty, Bimelech's owner, Col Edward Riley Bradley, sick and 80, was 30 miles away, unable to be at the track.

He waited by a radio at his Idle Hour farm for the news of a victory that he has been planning for, hoping for and scheming for since Bimelech was foaled.

Mystery Girl Defies Police With a Smile

Taken Into Custody Near Depot, She Won't Tell Who She Is.

Pretty and brunet, a 20-year-old "mystery girl" who smilingly refused to divulge her identity was being held at police headquarters today while detectives made efforts to find out who she is.

Dark-eyed, attractive and moderately well-dressed, the girl was taken into custody at 2 a. m. today at the Pennsylvania railroad station when railroad employes noticed her loitering around the depot.

She carried a week-end case in which she had a small amount of clothing and a few toilet articles, police said.

Believed by officers at first to have been a victim of amnesia she was brought to police headquarters. Later however, they said, she stubbornly refused to answer any questions.

She told police her name was Isabel Kreuger and that her home was formerly in Detroit. A radio message was immediately broadcast to Detroit authorities to check her story.

Finding in her purse several clippings from the Mansfield News-Journal of several weeks ago showing a class of nurses at the General hospital, detectives this morning theorized that she might be a nurse.

Talks With Health Nurse.

A nurse from the public health department was called by the officers and talked to the girl.

She said she was told by the girl that she had come to Mansfield yesterday from Marion seeking work. She had been employed there until recently doing housework, according to her story.

The girl said she left her home in Detroit about a year ago and had not corresponded with her parents since. She said she did not want them to know where she was.

The nurse said the girl told her that the picture of the nurses was clipped from the paper because the girl said she had a fondness for the profession which she had considered taking up a few years ago.

REACHES 48

Mercury Up as Weatherman Sees Fair, Warm Sunday.

An abashed and discomfited thermometer, starting from the early 40's this morning, sluggishly climbed upward today in its efforts to catch up with a calendar that insisted it was spring, despite the evidence of the past few days.

The weather man, determined to fight it out on that line if it takes all summer, doggedly predicted — again—"slowly rising temperatures" for tomorrow. But look for tight frosts tonight, for this same authority predicts it.

Sunday will be fair and warmer—the weatherman hopes. For the second straight day yesterday the mercury flirted with record low marks, running all the way down to freezing point.

This morning, however, it was valiantly struggling upward and had reached 48 at noon today.

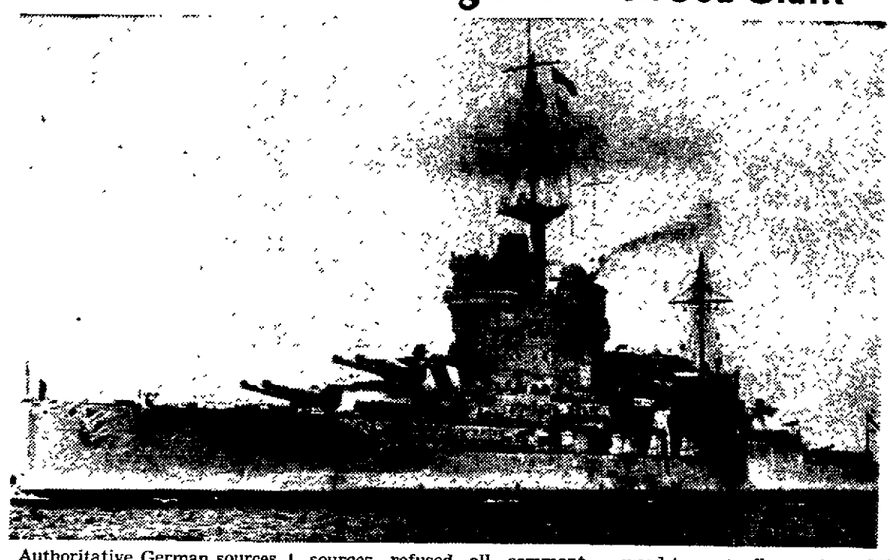
Nazis Claim Sinking of British Sea Giant



Authoritative German sources in Berlin said today that Nazi bombing planes had sunk a giant British warship of the Warspite class (shown above) off Namsos yesterday afternoon. British sources refused all comment. It was the first time the Germans had claimed their planes had sunk a battleship. Berlin said heavy caliber bombs struck the ship between the two forward turrents, flames shot 1,500 feet into the air and that a half minute later the ship had gone down. Battleships of the Warspite class usually carry about 1,200 men, are of 30,600 tons.

GETS BALLOTS FOR PRIMARIES

Election Board Piles Them Up; 32 Inches Long They Are Record In Size.

Record-size ballots for the May 14 primary were piled high today in the county election board headquarters following the delivery of 44,350 of the ballots by Lindeman and Almy, Mansfield printers.

The order included 22,350 Democratic ballots and 22,000 for Republican voters. Believed the largest ever used in the county, the ballots are three columns wide and about 32 inches long.

They bear the names of state, district, and county candidates and delegates and alternates to the national convention.

Ballots will not be distributed to the voting booths until Monday before election when other election supplies will also be taken to the voting places.

Although next Thursday is the deadline for voting sick and absentee voters' ballots, only 32 of the ballots had been obtained today, Walter Underwood, deputy election board clerk, said. Seventeen of the ballots were requested by Republicans and 15 by Democrats.

Notices will go out early next week to 552 election booth workers in the county's 92 precincts, telling them to be on the job Tuesday, May 14. Six persons will be employed at each voting place.

The city of Mansfield will have one additional precinct this year, giving it 51. The new precinct is F of the Second Ward which was formed to reduce the size of others in the southwest section of the city.

KILLS WOMAN; SHOOTS SELF

Spurned Love Reported Cause Of Steubenville Tragedy.

STEUBENVILLE—(AP)—George Munas, 44, is in critical condition today from bullet wounds suffered as he turned a gun on himself after killing a mother of three children.

Mrs. Helen Popovich, 42, was felled by five bullets a few steps from her home in the steel mill district. A score of persons, including mill workers and policemen, witnessed the shooting.

Police said they learned Mrs. Popovich had spurned the attentions of Munas, a former roomer in her home.

7 Pupils Shaken When Automobile Hits School Bus

Seven school children were shaken up but escaped injury when the school bus in which they were riding was struck by an automobile driven by an unidentified man at 4:30 p. m. yesterday on route 42, four miles northeast of Mansfield.

Charles H. Plumb, the bus driver, told highway patrolmen he was driving north on the highway and had slowed down to make a left turn into the farm of J. W. McMillan when the bus was struck in the left side by an automobile. The driver stopped, patrolmen said, but his name was not learned.

Plumb was driving a 1928 seven-passenger sedan which he uses for a school bus, according to officers. He was also uninjured.

Riding in the bus with him were Charles Nells, 8, Robert Nells, 9, Donald Nells, 6, James McMillan, 8, Norma Jean Fletcher, 14, Richard Fletcher, 8, and William Fletcher, 6.

SALES DOUBLE

Richland Countians Buy 350 New Autos During April.

Richland countians bought twice as many new automobiles in April as in the same month last year and more than in any single month in the past four years.

Registrations recorded by Normah P. Henry, deputy county clerk, showed there were 350 new cars and 42 new trucks sold last month in the county. Last April 181 new cars and 23 trucks were sold.

The April car sales were up only one over the March figures, but truck sales gained more than 100 per cent. Only 20 trucks were sold in March as compared to the 42 last month, the best sales month since March, 1938, when 45 were sold.

JUST VACATION

Mail Clerk Returns 37 Years Later to Finish Job.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col.—(AP)—George E. Rieder came from Baltimore just to work 32 hours at the postoffice where he had worked 37 years ago.

It wasn't nostalgia that brought him back—he needed the 32 hours to complete his probationary period as a government employe to qualify for a job at Baltimore.

POPULATION IN 3 VILLAGES UP

Bellville, Lexington, Lucas Show Increase, Preliminary Census Report Shows.

Three of Richland county's seven villages showed an increase in population during the past 10 years, preliminary figures on the 16th decennial census, released by Don Harper, district director at Mt. Vernon, disclosed today.

The partial report which revealed the population count in Bellville, Lexington and Lucas was only a preliminary announcement of figures and is subject to correction in final tabulation, Harper pointed out.

Largest increase was shown in Bellville, the 1940 population count showing a total of 1,195 persons. This is an increase of 208 over the 987 listed in 1930 when the last census was taken. In 1920 the population was 998.

Lexington, according to the preliminary figures, has a population of 712 persons as compared with the 1930 census total of 614, an increase of 98. The 1920 census was 634.

The village of Lucas showed an increase of 113 persons. A total of 482 were listed as against 369 in 1930 and 337 when the 1920 census was taken.

Figures on the four other villages in the county have not been completed.

ALLIES OPEN FINAL DRIVE UPON NARVIK

Heavy Bombardment of German Positions Started From Land and Sea.

NAZIS SHORT OF FOOD

Remaining Norwegians Active In Guerrilla Warfare Aided by Swedes.

(By United Press)

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Allied forces are shelling German-held Narvik, above the Arctic circle on the Norwegian coast, from sea and land in preparation for a "final" assault, it was reported today.

Reliable neutral military informants said that land batteries and warships had started to bombard German positions in and around the Norwegian iron ore port yesterday afternoon.

Allied guns pounded the German positions all night, reports said, and it was believed the Allies might make a frontal attack, partly to offset the loss of prestige involved in their forced withdrawals from their landing bases in central Norway.

Refugees arriving from the Narvik area reported that the Germans, though well armed and in good positions to make any big scale attack costly, were short of food and might have difficulty in getting ammunition.

Allied sources intimated that many troops, both Allied and Norwegian, had been moved north to the Narvik area from Namsos and Andalsnes. It was known that the Germans had been pressed back on Narvik town from their positions to the north.

Still Fighting.

Newspaper dispatches from the frontier reported that Norwegian troops who had been holding positions along the narrow valleys in southern Norway, realizing now that their positions were becoming untenable, were attacking

SECOND BOMB

Dynamite Explodes In Yard Of Tire Worker.

AKRON — (U.P.) — A dynamite bomb was exploded last midnight in the front yard of W. B. Purdy, tire worker, in suburban Cuyahoga Falls. It was the second bombing here in two days.

The explosion damaged a mail box at the Purdy home and stopped a clock. Mr. and Mrs. Purdy and their son, William, 21, were home.

Purdy said he fired his shotgun at the back of a truck from which the bomb had been thrown. Authorities were unable to trace the truck.

A garage at the home of Carroll Ogden was damaged by a bomb Thursday evening. Both Purdy and Ogden are employes of the General Tire and Rubber company, where a strike is in progress.

Hitler and Goering Jubilant Over Success Of Aviators Against Embarking Foe; Declare Britons Spiritless.

BULLETIN

THE HAGUE—(UP)—Premier D. J. De Geer disclosed in a broadcast speech today that 21 extremists had been arrested in Holland during the night. All were Dutch Nazis. All are expected to be interned under the military regulations.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

BERLIN — Germany asserted jubilantly today that her bombing planes had sunk one of the mightiest vessels of the British navy—a 30,600-ton battleship of the Queen Elizabeth class.

The sinking was said by the German high command to have taken place off Namsos, the port from which the last British troops in central Norway reembarked yesterday.

Authorized sources said that it was the first time since the beginning of the current war that German aircraft had been sent out with specific orders to keep after a designated battleship until it was sent to the bottom.

Adolf Hitler and Air Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering were represented as over-joyed at the news of this latest German success, which they were said to regard as equivalent to the defeat of an army.

(The vessel of the Queen Elizabeth class represents an investment of approximately £2,524,000—about $12,000,000 at the rate of exchange prevailing during their construction between 1913-15.)

(Vessels of the Queen Elizabeth class, of which there are five, normally carry a complement of 1,124 to 1,184 men. The class includes the Queen Elizabeth, Warspite and Valiant, each totaling 30,600 tons, and the Barham and Malaya, each of 31,100 tons.)

It was announced also today that an enemy submarine had been sunk by a pursuing German U-boat after it had been sighted and bombed by a German reconnaissance plane. The location was not disclosed.

LONDON—(INS)—British naval officials today declined comment on German claims that a battleship of the Warspite class had been bombed and sunk off Trondheim with terrific loss of life. Belief was expressed by some usually well-informed quarters that the German claim may be only a "feeler" to obtain naval information.

The high command said the battleship sinking actually took place yesterday but that it had withheld the news "in order to give Winston Churchill (first lord of the British Admiralty) a chance to say it first."

When Churchill maintained sil-

Chamberlain Cabinet Faces Test After Norse Defeats

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Collapse of the British campaign in central Norway brought Prime Minister Chamberlain's cabinet its sternest test of the war today as members of his own Conservative party, hungry for military successes, showed signs of active rebellion.

Parliamentary sources indicated that unless a signal success for British arms is achieved before next Tuesday, when the house of commons begins an inquiry into the Norwegian reverse, the present government will face a bitter fight for its life.

Growing restiveness within the prime minister's party was evidence last night when Richard K. Law, member of parliament for strongly conservative Hull, declared that the government's "attitude toward the problem must be changed before the country is in sight of victory."

Clement Davies, Welsh member of parliament, a liberal national, and thus normally a supporter of the government, announced simultaneously that he had met with a group of colleagues who had decided to oppose any vote of confidence during "the biggest crisis we ever had to face."

The Manchester Guardian raised its powerful voice to declare that Chamberlain's "capacity for self-delusion is a national danger," in commenting upon the withdrawal of troops from Norway.

Italy Claims Invulnerable Position In Mediterranean

(By United Press)

ROME—The ultra-Fascist newspaper Il Tevere said today that Italy—with 8,000,000 soldiers and 340 warships in position in the Mediterranean—is "absolutely invulnerable" to any Allied threat.

"We are sure that not a single shell from an Anglo-French cannon can fall on the industrial centers or the coastline when the hour comes," the newspaper said.

The newspaper said that 8,000,000 soldiers "ready for action today" were one of the reasons for the invulnerable position of the Fascist state.

Commenting on the Italian navy, Il Tevere said that between Sicily and Greece there are six battleships, 33 cruisers, 118 destroyers and 62 torpedo boats operating.

It added that 121 submarines are stationed between the Ligurian sea (off northeastern Italy facing France) and the western coast of Italy, along a line running down the coast to Otranto at the entrance to the Adriatic sea.

The newspaper cited seven reasons for its claim that Italy is invulnerable, as follows.

1—The Adriatic has been made a closed sea.

2—Italy's submarines form an

Mansfield—Heart of Steel Industry

SIGNIFICANTLY, the geographic center of the steel industry in the United States lies at the site of the open hearth furnace at the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company just north of Mansfield. The spot was fixed by the American Iron and Steel institute in a survey made in 1928, the last year for which complete figures are available.

It is from the very heart of America's largest industry, therefore, that Jane Williams brings you the story of Empire steel in her series of stories on What Mansfield Makes in tomorrow's edition of The News-Journal. Nearly a half page of pictures points up this article on an industry which includes in its processes the most impressive of all man-made spectacles—the tapping of an open hearth.

Also included in the series tomorrow is the story of the Hartman Electric company which manufactures "hot" fence controls, used the world over.

Among the other features that make this Sunday's edition of The News-Journal one of unusual interest are:

Giant of Marion Avenue—Elmer Reichert who stands seven feet four inches tall is interviewed by Virgil A. Stanfield.

Mansfield Nebuchadnezzar—Robert E. Rogers heard about this vitamins-lurking-in-the-grass business and so he gathered some and Mansfield-Leland hotel chef William P. Angelo whipped up a grass salad for him. Words and pictures give you the result.

For the youngsters there begins a new series of features on model plane building. And for everybody of every age there are features old and new.

Sports fans will find two pages carrying results of the Kentucky Derby, the North Central Ohio track meet, and the Newark Relays in which Mansfield's Red Streaks are participating this afternoon.

Senate Studies $20,000,000 Military Bill Increase

2,000 COMBAT PLANES ASKED IN NEXT YEAR

Even Economy Group Impressed by Arnold Report On Nazi Air Leadership.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A move to supply the air corps with more than 2,000 combat airplanes during the next 12 months was started in the senate today by Sen. Thomas (D) Okla.

As chairman of the senate appropriations military subcommittee, Thomas said facts revealed to legislators by air corps experts showed "at least this many planes would be needed during the next fiscal year." The pending $830,000,000 military supply bill provides for 1,900 combat planes.

Thomas' plan for increasing the air corps acquisition of fighting planes anticipated a $20,000,000 increase in the military bill's total, and there were indications that congress would support his proposed set-up of production.

A checkup of appropriations committee members disclosed that even its economy leaders were impressed by assertions of Brig. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the air corps, that existing planes could not cope with the modern air fighter of Germany. They were assured that American factories could turn out as many machines as the government cared to buy. This information resulted in Thomas' decision to ask for money for 106 planes above the 1,900 total in the bill.

The original effect of Arnold's assertions that American planes needed heavier protective armor, heavier guns and self-sealing gasoline tanks, was softened somewhat by declarations of President Roosevelt. The executive told reporters at his press conference that the military was not alarmed at the progress made by foreign governments in the direction of aviation improvement.

Arnold assured the committee members that planes coming into production under the 1941 supply bill would have all of the features vital to adequate defense and offense.

The entire subject of plane deliveries was due for an airing as congress prepared to debate the military supply bill. Sen. Lodge (R) Mass., and other GOP senators planned to join the Democrats in a move to make certain delivery of all American planes needed, regardless of European orders that are increasing daily.

Concurrent with congressional moves for speeding up airplane production and improving defensive and offensive qualities of American ships, big-navy leaders planned to open hearings on a naval re-designment program Monday.

Reward Offered For Capture of Institute Head

LIMA —(INS)— A reward of $3.23 was offered today for the capture of Samuel Harden Church by seven Bluffton college students, who termed the head of the Carnegie Institute a war monger for placing $1,000,000 on the head of Adolf Hitler.

The students claimed that Church was trying to "arouse passions and prejudices" and that his action will strain international relations. Bluffton college is a Mennonite college 17 miles northeast of Lima. Monnonites practice pacifism.

SEE CHILDREN IN FINAL PLAY

Crowd Witnesses Performance Of 'Cinderella' Portrayed by Youngsters at Church.

The auditorium of the Park Avenue Baptist church was filled to capacity last night when the Children's Theater presented "Cinderella—The Stranger Princess" as the final play on its winter-spring program.

The audience was an enthusiastic one and the children responded to the inspiration of appreciation. Exceptionally good performances were turned in by Doris Alverson as Cinderella and Bob Oliver as the Prince. Other outstanding players were Sigred Meisse and Patty O'Hara as the unkind stepsisters ,and Mary Oliver as the step-mother.

A bit of stage technique which mystified the audience was the transformation of Cinderella's rags into the glittering ball gown. This was accomplished under a blue light which ushered in the fairy godmother, and by having a second Cinderella in rags, identical with little Miss Alverson, who slipped in and set by the fire while the real Cinderella changed just outside the entrance. Virginia McMichael was the second Cinderella.

Costumes of the 18th century French period, were worthy of comment. They were made from discarded evening dresses and draperies by the costume committee. Members of the committee were Mrs. Irving Clark, Mrs. E. C. Thompson, Mrs. Louis Meisse, and Mrs. George Kirtly.

The play was directed and staged by Harold McCuen. Mrs. Robert Beatty was in charge of promotion.

HUNT HIKER

But Police Fail to Locate Knox Check Passer.

A hitch-hiking check passer who left a trail of bad checks yesterday from Mt. Vernon to Bellville apparently had eluded city and county authorities today.

Learning that the man was headed north on route 13 from Bellville yesterday afternoon, officers waited for him at the southern edge of the city during the afternoon. He failed to show up. City detectives said he probably changed his route or got a ride through the city.

Said to be a former amateur boxer at Mt. Vernon, the man was described by victimized merchants as young and heavily built. He cashed checks in Mt. Vernon and Fredericktown and one for $15 at the Hursh drug store in Bellville.

ASKS OVERTIME FOR JAIL WORK

Prisoner Claims He Did One Year's Work in 6 Months.

PITTSBURGGH —(AP)— Energetic Charles D. Delphey, jr., wants credit for the overtime he's put in at the county jail.

Asking a parole after serving six months of a one to three year sentence for false pretense, Delphey explained he worked 16 hours daily and added:

"Figuring the average working day of a man at eight hours, I have done a year's work in six months."

FARMER ATTENDS FUNERAL FOR WIFE HE KILLED WITH SHOTGUN

(By United Press)

NEWCOMERSTOWN — Roy Kail, 54-year-old crippled farmer, was to attend funeral services today for his wife, Nell, 47, whom he killed with a shotgun at their home at Gilmore, Wednesday.

Kail almost collapsed when he saw his wife's body in the home of her brother here. It was the first time he had seen her since she was shot down as she came cout of the barn.

Authorities said Kail has insisted that he did not mean to shoot his wife; that he was jealous, and that he had been subject to fits of anger since he became crippled by paralysis five years ago.

He has spent much of his time in the Tuscarawas county jail at New Philadelphia reading the Bible. He has sobbed as he talked of his wife.

A sanity test was to be given Kail later today by Dr. Arthur G. Hyde, superintendent of the Massillon State hospital. Prosecutor Ralph Finley said manslaughter charges might be filed against Kail if he is declared sane.

The funeral services today were private. Rites also were to be held at the West Union church with burial in the church cemetery.

Kail told authorities that had spied on his wife and Roy Jones, 48, a farm hand and saw them embracing in the barn. Jones denied this.

CITY WORKMAN LOSES HIS JOB

Engineering Inspector Not Certified By Civil Service Board.

Acting on an order issued by the civil service commission that any further pay vouchers for Albert E. Hancock, engineering department inspector, would not be approved, Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton today notified the city employe of his dismissal.

Crafton said he had been notified earlier this week by the civil service commission that Hancock was illegally employed in that he had not been properly certified for the civil service job.

Hancock who was appointed in 1935 as inspector in the engineering department has been employed on the West Fourth street improvement project.

TWO ESCAPE IN NICK OF TIME FROM BUILDING

Flash of Light Seen Five Miles Distant From New Jersey Firm.

CARNEY'S POINT, N. J. — A terrific explosion of 4,000 pounds of powder today rocked the Carney's Point powder plant of the E. I. Du Pont De Nemours company.

The blast occurring shortly before 6 a. m., damaged a brick sieving building where powder is treated with graphite and placed in cartridges.

Plant officials said no one was killed and no one was hurt seriously altough two men who ran from the building were taken to a hospital on the grounds for treatment for shock. They escaped in the nick of time.

The damaged sieving building, one of numerous small buildings on the property, is set apart from other structures so that a blast such as this did not spread to other operations on the grounds.

Three blinding flashes of light which threw aglare into the sky that was seen in Wilmington, five miles across the Delaware river, preceded the detonation.

The flares were caused by ignition of the powder as it whirled around in a vat, workmen explained. In Wilmington, early morning risers who saw the glare said it looked like a brilliant sunrise in the eastern sky.

It was feared the explosion meant a repitition of the disastrous blast at the Du Pont company's nitroglycerin plant in Gibbstown, N. J.,—not far from here—where two men were killed and several others were injured January 17.

UNION, PLANT OFFICIALS MEET

Discuss Bargaining Agent at Westinghouse; New Labor Election Looms.

Discussion over bargaining representation that are expected to lead to a labor election at Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company plant here were held in Cleveland yesterday, with company and Local 711, United Electrical and Radio Workers, a CIO affiliate, participating.

The meeting, held at the office of Oscar Smith, regional director of the National Labor Relations board, followed a request by the union that it be designated as sole bargaining agent for all Westinghouse employes.

The Westinghouse Employes association, Inc., a previous petitioner for bargaining rights was represented by its president, S. G. Bushman. Bushman submitted a letter to the board which said the association did not consider itself a party of interest in the proceedings, and waived the right to be considered in an election or other proceedings which might be ordered by the board.

Representing Westinghouse at the meeting was C. L. VanDerau, works manager; L. E. Osborne, manager of manufacturing and engineering, and William Miller, Pittsburg, counsel for the company. The union was represented by J. T. Hawkins, president; Mathew Mayer; Earl Hildebrand, Paul Reed, Henry Henke, Jacob Campbell and Edwin Beal, international representative, all of Mansfield.

Employes of Westinghouse rejected the Employes' association as collective bargaining agent last December when they voted 1,145 to 943 against representation by the independent union. Local 711 was not a party to that election.

Not That It Matters

Here's Tip on Bank Night Future; Women Aren't Yet Taking Men's Jobs Here

—By JANE WILLIAMS

DON'T look now, but I think I see the end of the theater bank night, not only in Mansfield but throughout the state. Somebody told somebody who told me that theaters will get the bad news within the next few weeks.

The court of appeals, as this column informed you a few weeks ago, upheld the decision of the lower court in the case of the Troy Amusement company, that bank night, no matter how you slice it, is still lottery and a scheme of chance.

The amusement company petitioned the state supreme court to review the case and this, so my informant says, the high court will refuse to do, although its decision will not be announced for a week or so. This in effect, is the same as upholding the decision of the court of appeals.

The minute the action of the supreme court is announced, bank night becomes a lottery in Ohio, and therefore illegal. A lot of Mansfield pulses should return to normal on Friday nights.

A peculiar phase of bank night in Mansfield is that almost every jackpot has been won by persons who needed the money very badly.

IF THE series of stories on "What Mansfield Makes," which has been running in the Sunday News-Journal for a number of weeks, does nothing else, at least it has served as an educational factor in the life of your Main Street correspondent.

Men, conducting me through industrial plants and explaining the intricacies of steel, tire making, building refrigerators and ranges, and the differences between motors that operate on AC current and on batteries, look at me askance and demand "Isn't this sort of a funny assignment for a woman writer?"

I think not. Women should know as much about their town as men. And I have a very smug and complacent feeling now that I know as much about Mansfield's "72 diversified industries" as any man in town.

One of the things that impressed me is how comparatively few women are employed in the plants. You hear so much about women usurping men's places in industry. Perhaps that is true, but not in Mansfield. I saw women doing only the things that women are suited for—hand work that required patience and nimble fingers.

And another fallacy is that men's working age is ended at 40 or thereabouts. If the exact age of every industrial worker in Mansfield were added, I'll bet the average would be around 40, if not a year or so over. I'm certain there are more men in plants who are over 40 than there are under that age.

THERE has always been a sizable doubt in my mind as to whether the majority of Americans favored the New Deal policies as a whole or were swayed by loyalty to the man who symbolizes them.

This month's issue of Fortune gives the results of a comprehensive survey made over the United States on this very subject. Less than one fourth of the people favor extending New Deal policies or even retaining them as they are.

Votes from all parts of the country favored modification. Very few people hope for, or would want, repeal of New Deal legislation. Because much of it represents a new and progressive social era in American life. But there seems to be a persistent and ever-increasing feeling in all classes that there never will be business stability or a mass feeling of security again until many of the New Deal policies are drastically changed.

But the Roosevelt hypnotism is still very strong. "On the question of a third term for Roosevelt, the nation as a whole is against it by a margin of eight per cent," Fortune observes.

That margin can be offset very easily by the Magnetic Personality at the last minute.

IN HER autobiography, "I Married Adventure," by Osa Johnson (which will be the next Book-Of-The Month selection) the intrepid explorer who spoke in Mansfield a couple of years ago, tells of her romance with her husband, the late Martin Johnson.

He ran a nickelodeon at Independence, Kan., after his first exploring trip with Jack London, and realizing the need of additional attractions (they hadn't thought of giving away dishes yet) he sent out for a girl to sing. Osa Leighty from Chanute, Kan., was the songstress. The pianist played the wrong tune and she didn't know the words, but young Johnson remarked that she "certainly made a lot of noise for a pint size." He must have liked the noise for they were married that same night. The audience, too, liked the song, although they thought it a little "different."

Which reminds me of the time when I, too, was the "added attraction" at the nickelodeon, and got my wires crossed. I was to "speak a piece" and I chose a very dramatic one. Half way through and a wave of amnesia swept over me; and I forgot everything for an instant. I couldn't even remember what piece I had been reciting, so I just started in on another with scarcely a pause. I think the entire audience reaction was summed up by the comment of my Sunday School teacher, who said:

"That was a mighty fine piece you spoke the other night—but it did seem a mite as if you didn't end up with the horses you started with."

I had started with "How Salvator Won The Race" and ended with "The Ben Hur Chariot Race."

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

HOLLYWOOD—Bel-Air is an exclusive, wooded and flowered residential division that sprawls over some of the rolling hills, valleys and canyons between Hollywood and the sea.

Some years ago, it was a matter of local moment that Bel-Air had opened its invisible gates to a "movie person," one Colleen Moore, who proceeded to build a sumptuous little shack of ump-teen rooms, swimming pool and other trappings. As one who always figured movie people were just about like other people, at least in their beginnings and if Hollywood didn't "get" them, I never did see why Bel-Air was being generous, or why Colleen Moore had achieved any particular distinction in moving in, but then there are lots of matters I need to clear up.

Anyway, Bel-Air has plenty of "movie persons" now, and the ladies of the Bel-Air garden club had their annual flower show not long ago. It was quite a show, colossal as we say in the movies, although I failed to see any exhibits from movie personages.

What I'm getting around to saying is that Miss G. Garbo was among the customers. Miss G. came in, accompanied by a friend my spy identified as Mrs. Harrison Williams of sartorial fame, and sat down for tea in a secluded corner of the tea-room.

"Garbo's in there," one of the members said disinterestedly to her colleagues.

"Oh, is she?" said Bel-Air collectively and sniffily, and went about its flowery affairs. This indifference continued a few moments, until one of the ladies said airily, "Well, I think I'll just go by and see what she looks like." In a little while, a casual stream of ladies, wearing oh-well-as-long-as-she's-here expressions, had inspected Miss G. Garbo, who tea-d on, unperturbed.

I am in receipt of a communication from the Guild Publicity Bureau, Inc. ("There's more to proper publicity than getting your name in print") which enjoins me henceforth to refer to cameramen as "Directors of Photography," which is the title bestowed upon members of the craft by agreement with the producers three years ago.

"The word 'cameramen' is no longer properly descriptive of the men who have charge of lighting and photography, since they never touch the cameras," says the bulletin.

This is a pretty thought, but as a peace-loving individual I dislike this passion for hair-splitting in titles. Thus guided, one no longer could blanket all hams under the charitable term "actor," nor label "director" all those who merely stand around a set and try to follow explicit instructions in the script. One would have to detail how much producing some producers really do, and embarrass certain "writers" whose best signed works are checks.

However, I'll compromise. I'll call them Directors of Photography, if they'll call me something fancy like—let's see, how would Veteran of Verbosity do?

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Who hasn't wished for the fun of digging up buried treasure, or dreamed of the adventures of those who are kidnapped by bandits? Stories of such experiences are in the two books added to the display in the children's room this week.

SON OF THE DANUBE, by Boris G. Petroff—Mitko and the other boys who were his friends loved adventure. They went fishing without lines and hooks. Mitko went on a forbidden trip with his father by stowing away on a river boat. Also the boys planned an exciting trip to a deserted castle which was often visited by hermit robbers. Along with the adventures of these boys the readers may learn the habits of daily life of those who live along the shores of the Danube in Bulgaria.

RED BEARDS OF THE YELLOW RIVER, by Radko Doone—Wu Ling, a wealthy Chinese merchant left his son with a farmer where he should be safe from bandit gags who sought to take him for ransom. But the bandits came to the farm and stole Chen away, not knowing he was the wealthy son of the house of Wu. An American boy was held for ransom by the band also and although they could not understand the language of each other they developed a close friendship. The wanderings of the bandits and the repeated attempts of the boys to escape hold suspense until the end of the book.

DROPS $18,000

County's General Fund Balance Declines During Month.

Richland county's general fund balance dropped nearly $18,000 during April and on May 1 amounted to $10,730, the monthly financial report of County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe showed today.

General fund receipts in April totaled $15,027 while the county spent $32,566.

The report listed $226,869 in "overdrafts," or advances against the first half collection of real estate and personal property taxes. The Mansfield schools drew the largest amount in advances—$185,000. Undivided general taxes were listed at $570,888.

PLAN PROGRAM

3 Mansfielders to Arrange 'Restaurant Week' Observance Here.

In charge of the observance in Mansfield is a committee comprised of Tom McNew, George Satterlee and Steve Georgopoulous. "Let's Dine Out" is the keynote of the week, being sponsored by more than 50,000 restaurants throughout the United States and Canada.

The practice of holding elections on more than one day was not uncommon in the early years of the United States.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, MAY 4, 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—accidents don't just "happen"—they are CAUSED.

All nuts do not grow on trees—as, for instance, that Pittsburgher who offered $1,000,000 to anyone who kidnaped Hitler.

According to General Johnson, "the federal government has no money that it doesn't take out of the states"—so maybe there isn't a Santa Claus after all.

Next Week Is 'Clean-Up' Time

A WEEK devoted to "Spring Clean-up" has been an established custom in Mansfield for so many years that mere announcement of dates might seem to be all that is required.

It appears, however, that clearing out rubbish from basement and attic and ridding the yard of the winter's accumulation of "trash" are matters of education and example to which at least a few people give little attention.

Mansfield's "Spring Clean-up" is set for next week, under sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce and the Junior Association of Commerce, with city trucks to be used in collecting rubbish from all parts of the city.

Accumulation of rubbish in homes not only evidences untidiness of occupants but also constitutes a fire hazard that should be removed at the earliest possible moment.

In addition to the "clean-up" phase of next week's activities, emphasis is being placed on this being the time of year for "paint-up and fix-up" preparations, and also for planting shrubbery and getting back yard gardens in readiness for cultivation.

The interest of Mansfield citizens in making their home surroundings attractive has already resulted in this city gaining an enviable reputation for the attractiveness of many of its residential sections, and this can be improved upon if each family will do its share in the pleasant and healthful work of cleaning up the home premises and keeping them that way.

In directing attention to next week's "clean-up" the Junior Association of Commerce asks everybody to "lend a hand toward making Mansfield the cleanest city in the state"—which, surely, is a worthy ambition.

Why Nazi Methods Fail

CONQUEST and administration of other nations is a matter not only of arms and military strategy, but of human nature. And there, it seems, the Nazi or Prussian type of conquest usually fails. Germany was never very successful in colonial administration, compared with some other important colonizing powers.

The British have been the most successful of all modern races in this field. Exceptions must be made, to be sure, of the British blundering which alienated the American colonies, errors in South Africa, and the excessive severity applied at times in India, especially in the early years of conquest. But speaking in general, the British have done quite well in governing and developing colonies for two reasons.

First, they have understood the psychology of subject peoples. Second, they have contributed greatly, especially in the last century, to the development of colonial resources and the upbuilding of the colonies, so that the natives themselves have been benefited. The British in these respects have been compared to the ancient Romans, in their periods of strong but on the whole benevolent overlordship.

There is no present evidence that overlords of the Nazi type will, or can, do this sort of thing, either with savages or with their highly civilized neighbors in Europe.

It's Easy To Say 'Thank You'

AMONG the pleasant sales promotion slogans which you hear from time to time you may now place another: "Your purchase free if we fail to thank you."

Just who originated this one has not been disclosed, nor does it matter much, for it is a part of retail selling that has long been recognized as important, but to which some merchants and salespeople do not give sufficient attention.

Patronage is frequently lost to stores by inattention or lack of courtesy and intelligence on the part of clerks, and proper training for the duties of clerking, or any other position in which an employe comes in contact with the public, cannot be safely disregarded by employers, or by men and women engaged in this kind of work.

A pleasant-mannered clerk, familiar with the stock of the store in which he or she is employed, courteous to all patrons, even if they are merely "looking," and with an agreeable "Thank you" at the close of each transaction, tends to attract and hold trade.

"Your purchase free if we fail to thank you" may sometime be regarded as a safe slogan for all well conducted stores.

WPA Becomes More Flexible

A STATEMENT by Col. F. C. Harrington, commissioner of public works at Washington, discloses that 1,250,000 workers left the WPA rolls voluntarily in the last twelve months. They are said to be leaving now at the rate of 100,000 a month.

This statement made a good introduction for National Employment week, proclaimed for the first seven days of May.

It is true that when a WPA worker leaves for private employment, his departure isn't always permanent. People tend to return when private jobs fail again. But it is reassuring to find that the WPA apparently has become flexible enough to expand and contract readily with the changing market for labor.

The public for some time feared that people once on the government payroll would never get off. If the WPA can operate in a flexible way, serving the purpose it was intended to serve, there will be less prejudice against it.

More Attention to School Music

GRADE SCHOOL PUPILS Open Band Tournament Today." That was the headline over a recent story about a school band contest. More than 900 music students from seventeen schools played in the bands while 400 participated in solo and ensemble events.

It was in southern Illinois, but it might have had almost any date line. Such stories appear frequently in other states as well as in Ohio. Even in schools where pupils can't have the finest instruments or best individual instruction, surprisingly good musical work is being done nowadays.

Most of those soapbox orators seem to have paid little attention to the contents of the box.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Get on an 8th avenue subway express, ride up to 125th street. . . . Change to a local, and ride past 135th, past 145th and on 'til you come to 155th street. . . . Get off, and walk through the big iron gate, on along a cement ramp, and up a broad flight of steps. . . . There's a sign that says Polo Grounds. . . . There's a sign that says Baseball Today. . . . There's a boy who yells "Baseball News—Tells all about the players . . . Ott, Dizzy, Pearson, Hubbell. . . . Getcher News Now." . . . There's a boy who yells "Papers, papers, get the latest papers. . . . Get the line-ups for today's game." . . . There's a big cop, and a hundred other cops, with grins on their Irish pans, grinning because they can't help it. Because they're glad Commissioner Valentine detailed them on Harlem duty today.

You walk past the high, green portals of the Polo Grounds with its iron turnstiles; and dirty kids duck out of the line yelling, "Got an extra pass, got an extra ticket?" . . . You walk in the shadows under the grandstand, toward the door marked "Press Gate." . . . You see a man at the gate who takes your ticket, and reads the number of that ticket out loud. . . . He yells "Press 124." . . . And someone echoes "Press 124," and the turnstiles click, and you are passed through.

WALK up the big, wide ramp of cement that is a hundred yards long. . . . You hear a sharp staccato of balls meeting bats. . . . You hear the clamor of the butchers, "Hot coffee, hot coffee." . . . "Hot dogs, hot dogs with mustard." . . . You hear a voice boom, "Score Cards, Fi'Cents." . . . You hear a voice shrill, "Peanuts, Peanuts."

Don't stop at the top of the ramp. . . . The lower tier is no place to watch a baseball game. . . . Go on up to the upper tier, and out into the sunshine . . . take up a spot behind first base . . . where the jockies sit, and where you can watch all the close plays . . . four-fifth of any baseball game is played at first base.

The Polo Grounds in New York is like a giant open horseshoe, with banners streaming, and with strange new steel concentrations of light all around the upper tiers. . . . These are for night baseball, which never before has been played by the Giants. . . .

At the open end of the horseshoe are the bleachers. . . . Graduating on each side are the grandstand sections. . . . The players in their monkey suits are pumping a few balls into the empty sections. . . . It is batting practice. . . . Another group is deep in the field, shagging flies that a fat guy named Brown is lifting out there with a fungo stick. . . .

BIG long-range cameras begin to protrude from the press box, looking like guns in a beleaguered fortress. . . . Pigeons shoot out of a hole in the press box, carrying negatives to a newspaper office uptown. . . . They climb and circle, and circle some more, and light out in a straight line. . . . You see three men in black suits run out and stand at home plate and talk with a player from each team. Then one of the men walks over to first base, and another to third. . . . There is a man in a monkey suit out on the hill with a ball in his hand. . . . A man in another monkey suit picks up a bat, and steps up to the plate . . . and that is how baseball begins in New York.

1940 PROBLEM CHILD

Catacombs of National Capital

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Now I know what they mean by Washington underground.

No city in the country, without a subway system, is so honeycombed with tunnels, catacombs, conduits and below-surface passages as the nation's capital. It's a mystery-writer's undiscovered delight.

The capitol itself is center of a spider-web of tunnels and steampipe conduits that finger their way to the house and senate office buildings, to the Library of Congress, the Supreme Court building and down the capitol's backyard to the Botanical Gardens.

Deeper down under the capitol and the cluster of buildings there are the railroad tunnels that run from the Union Station.

There's hardly a government office building that doesn't have its tunnels connecting with an annex, a new or a sister building. All in all, there probably are miles of these alone—but there's nothing mysterious or eerie about them. They are lighted and tiled and the pedestrian traffic in them on a rainy day around quitting time is heavier than on the streets.

BUT the catacombs that nobody knows are made up of the system of tunnels that run from the central heating building and carry the big steam mains out to all official sections of the city. The smallest of these are four feet wide and over six feet high; the largest eight feet wide and seven feet high. Five steam mains lead out of central heating and these are locked against the walls and ceiling of the tunnels. Steamfitters, working in pairs, are making inspection tours up and down the tunnels 24 hours a day—but there are four and a half miles of tunnel in the system and you could spend hours down there without seeing a soul.

The capital's underground is not on any Washington tour, but if you know the right people, like Alex B. Eadie, chief engineer, you might get at least a look-in.

Dropping down through the spotless halls (hundreds of tons of coal are burned there daily, but there's not a sign of smoke or soot). I came to the yawning mouth of the main tunnel and was met by a blast of 120-degree dry heat that comes from the asbestos-encased pipes. Surprisingly, the heat becomes bearable within a few minutes and after a block or so of tramping, almost unnoticeable.

The tunnels are lighted on a block system, the traveler flipping on the lights ahead and turning off those behind at regular intervals. The tunnels have a phone system, too, that connects with central heating. At most points, the heat is pretty even, but the E-street extension is known as the hell-hole of the system. The temperature there is almost always around 160 degrees. It's a Turkish bath for certain. Even the hardy steamfitters make their inspections there on the run.

Battle of the Catacombs.

LIKE the sewers of Paris, the capital's catacombs have their story. During hard winters of years past, they housed a small army of bums. In the early days of their habitation, the hoboes would scurry out of the tunnels when a fleet-footed scout warned them of the approach of the steamfitters, but later they began to resent the intrusion.

Once there was a battle royal in the tunnels. A group of bums chased two steamfitters away, but the pipeline boys returned with reinforcements and an arsenal of wrenches. Some of the tramps probably are carrying cracked heads yet.

One hobo took up permanent abode in a branch of the tunnel down near the Potomac and refused to be dispossessed until police gave him quarters in the hoosegow.

One branch of the tunnel runs into the White House. Another into the Bureau of Engraving (where they make our folding money) and another into the treasury buildings. At these points the steamfitters have their troubles. The captain of the guard has to be called out and the steamfitters conducted on their inspection tours by an armed escort.

It was the New Deal that turned on the heat in Washington, the central system being started in 1933, but it was the old deal that planned it.

Listen, World!

They're Getting Too Tough.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I THINK our theaters are getting too tough.

It's all right to be dramatic. But you don't have to get down and wallow in the hog-mire to put yourself across. Mind you, I'm no prude. I was raised in the old Wild West, which prepared you for plenty of jolts. And I mined, as a grown woman, with muckers in the Sierra Nevada. Which should callous the blush on the most sensitive cheek. And did.

So, to be quite frank, none of these "startling," "sensational" or "daring" situations which are now so popular with our leading playwrights are any novelty to me. I learned all about them when I was sixteen. Or maybe six. And it didn't take much learning. Of all the sciences, biology is the simplest. . . . and the dullest. . . . after you've gotten over your first curiosity. As the makings for drama, I can't imagine any more stupid stuff. Yet the Boys continue to present it as if it were a three-headed calf.

And the silliest of all alibis is to call this sort of dirt-dishing "sophistication." There is a real sophistication of both mind and spirit, but it is not based on hearing the same vulgarities for the 9,675th time.

Real sophistication implies an experienced soul—tempered, controlled, poised, adjusted to the finer, subtler values of life.

Biology, per se, is not subtle, poised or controlled. Any rabbit can play the role—and does. A Broadway star, however handsome or intelligent, simply puts it into words. Which, I protest, is an insult to any mature intelligence. Why listen at 50 to something whose resources you exhausted at 15? Why be a rabbit when you can be a rational, beauty-loving human being?

My peeve against the theaters—particularly the New York variety—is not that they are too shocking, but that they aren't shocking enough. Human nature is an awesome spectacle. It has infinite varieties of expression — beauty and horror, hate and ambition, anguish and terror. Why not show us these varieties?

It isn't your "daring," boys, that I object to—but your lack of it. But suppose you used your undeniable talent to strip the soul of its veils and show it for the terrible and tender thing which it really is?

Suppose you leave the bedroom patter to the Junior High School and give us Oldsters glimpses of the Divine Comedy? We could use it, we Americans. We are, by and large, fairly infantile yet. We need to know how and why we work- and what makes our wheels go round.

"Green Pastures" gave us such a glimpse—and we ate it up. "The Miracle Man"—remember?—gave us another. And we couldn't get enough of it. Can't you Broadway Boys ever learn a lesson? Filth may mean high finance to you. But Decency is what brings in the Big Dividends when the Real Folks come to town.

Place Without WPA.

Sidney, capital of Shelby county, Ohio, is throwing out its chest and making chanticleer sounds all because it has found that by May 1 it will have nobody on WPA.

E. M. Seving, district manager of the state employment service, announces that the entire Shelby County, in fact, will be WPA free.

The farmers, of course, in that good agricultural county are busy, or at least, as busy as the weather will let them be.

The explanation of this fine situation is that three years ago the people of Sidney decided to do something about the unemployment situation on their own hook. They made a detailed analysis; then they went to work. Mayor Sexauer and industrial leaders conferred. Everybody started out to sell the idea of jobs and production. Also, they went out and obtained orders for the Sidney factories.

The results are that everybody has a job; taxes and rents are low, retail business is fine, there is no trace of class feeling, and everybody is happy. Perhaps Sidney has pointed the way to other communities and cities.—Ohio State Journal.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Finding Youth Late.

Most are young in youth but some
Only in late years
Find youth, after pain and grief,
Weariness and tears.

Strange it is, but it is true,
Only in old age,
Some find youth, know all its wealth,
Beauty of its page.

Better then to find its worth
Than to never know
All youth has within its heart,
All it can bestow.

Summary of Week's Happenings

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

MAY, the merry month of delegate-hunting, began with Thomas E. Dewey and President Roosevelt apparently holding good head-starts.

Republicans have chosen 514 of their 1,000 delegates, with Dewey's forces claiming two-thirds of them. Virtually all the rest must be chosen this month.

Democrats have picked 374 of their 1,094, FDR apparently can do as he pleases with at least 305 of them. This month they choose 392 more, and the rest early in June.

Unpledged New Englanders.

Mr. Dewey was ordered abed at Colorado Springs this week because of an upset stomach, but in New England his boosters sought to sew up delegates from Rhode Island and Massachusetts. Rhode Island's suave, Gov. Vanderbilt and the Bay state's Gov. Saltonstall, a bashful blue-blood, opposed. They wanted the delegates uninstructed. Both had their way.

Minnesota's young Gov. Stassen was in Washington taking notes for his Republican convention sound-off speech. After consulting an assortment of Republicans, he hinted that the keynote address would approve many New Deal objectives but demand changes in such programs as relief and farm aid.

Most conflicting advice came on a keep-out-of-war declaration. Senator Vandenberg wanted a straight "mind-our-own-business" statement. Senator Austin thought America should give the Allies all possible help short of joining them in arms.

Among the Democrats.

Vice-President Garner's rooters and third termers in Texas agreed to disagree no longer. Rep. Rayburn, a go-between, saw FDR and then dispatched telegrams to both factions urging peace. The accepted settlement: delegates would be pledged to Garner, but would not try to "stop Roosevelt." As Rayburn put it, they would not "be mad at anybody."

Postmaster General Farley won most of Massachusetts' 34 delegates, though he was notified that many would support FDR if he ran. The New York Herald-Tribune quoted Democratic leaders as predicting that—if FDR did not run—Farley would go into the convention with a majority of the delegates.

Senator Wheeler made it clear that he wanted first billing, or nothing. He said he was "not old enough" to be vice president.

Congressional Record.

In Washington, meanwhile:

The Senate okayed lekislation empowering the president to regulate transactions in American investments by foreign holders during wartime or other emergency; agreed to reconsider Senator Townsend's bill to stop the purchase of foreign silver; wrote three additional millions into the billion-dollar appropriation for federal labor and security activities; heard Senator Adams propose that Americans be allowed to extend credit to belligerents.

The House voted tentatively to liberalize hours provisions of the wage-hour law for regularly employed salaried workers, then jolted backers of the more drastic amendments by okaying a suggestion that it not tamper with wage requirements.

House Committees heard a labor board employe affirm that he had credited Supreme Court Justice Robert's crucial vote upholding the Wagner labor act to CIO's contract victories with U. S. Steel and General Motors in 1937; tabled the senate-approved Hatch bill to regulate political activities of state employes paid out of federal funds.

At Home

Lawmakers' Hazard.

Unless congressmen do some fancy finagling between now and adjournment they must either (1) whack about $400,000,000 from the president's budget, (2) provide for that amount in new taxes—as FDR suggested—or (3) push back further that limit of $45,000,000,000 which the U. S. now can write on the cuff.

Since choices 2 and 3 seemed dangerous in an election year, they chose to cut. After four months of chopping—and then putting back—their saving stood this week at only $116,000,000.

What Is a 'Locality'?

Under the Walsh-Healy act of 1936, companies selling the federal government more than $10,000 worth of supplies must pay employes the prevailing minimum wage for their "locality." Seven steel companies—pointing out that their "locality" included 13 states—argued before the Supreme Court that it was too large for a single prevailing wage.

The court ruled that the size of a locality is up to the government, which "enjoys the unrestricted power to produce its own supplies, to determine those with whom it will deal, and to fix the terms and conditions upon which it will make needed purchases."

Prosperity Dept.

Profits—The first 250 corporations to report for the initial quarter of 1940 showed a 50% rise in profits over the same period last year. Railroad equipment profits zoomed 480%, petroleum 420%, and steel 360%. "All major industrial groups for which comparisons could be made," reported AP statistician John Beckley, "showed larger incomes than a year ago."

Jobs—WPA Commissioner Harrington said 100,000 workers were leaving relief rolls every month (though some came back); and Secretary of Labor Perkins announced a million more Americans now have jobs than a year ago.

Bedlam In Baltimore.

Residents awoke in Baltimore Monday morning to find squealing pigs in their cellars, streets, autos and garages. Five carloads of porkers had been liberated by a train crash. Of 800 pigs that escaped, first reports had only 350 retrieved.

Abroad

Chinese Offensive On?

The strategy adopted by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek when the Japanese began overrunning his China 33 months ago, observers assert, was to let Japan have its victories for a couple of years. Then, when their military machine became mired in attempting to embrace 450,000,000 Chinese, he would strike back—hard.

This week, as Nipponese were observing Emperor Hirohito's 39th birthday, General Itagaki, chief of the Japanese army in China, issued the most conciliatory appeal for peace yet made by the Japanese army. He urged Chinese and Japanese to stop this nonsense of fighting each other and join in a pan-Asia move against Communism and British imperialism.

But from all over China came elated reports (for the most part undenied by the Japanese) of coups, Japanese repulses and Chinese victories. Fighting was reported on at least eight fronts in a half-dozen central provinces.

Turkey's Bachelors.

No exception is made in Turkey's bachelor tax for eunuchs. This week the Eunuch's Benevolent Association demanded that its 100 Negro members be exempted on the ground their bachelorship was involuntary. Officials replied the tax was levied on men not supporting wives, regardless of the reason, and rejected the petition.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Good Wine Needs No Bush."

"Where," inquires a reader, "did we get the expression Good wine needs no bush? Exactly what does it mean?

It means that good deeds require no heralding, nor honest wares a fancy wrapper.

Credit for the expression should properly go to Publius Syrus, who, writing before the birth of Christ, set down among his maxims:

"You need not hang up the ivy branch over the wine that will sell."

Shakespeare, steeped in the classics, must have been familiar with the words, which in the Epilogue to his play As You Like It, he made to read:

"Good wine needs no bush."

The allusion is also to the days when every shopkeeper displayed a sign emblematic of his business.

The pawnbroker hung out three gold balls and the wine seller his bush.

Quotes

Rep. Edward J. Hart, attacking persons engaged in subversive activities in the United States: "I warn those brutes that the patience of America is not inexhaustible and that those who hold the welfare of other nations above that of the United States will be brought to book."

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the World Christian Endeavor Union: "The overwhelming majority of the American people desires and is determined, to remain out of this war. But the people are not neutral in thought. They favor the Allies."

People

The Spirit of 76.

At Atlantic City, N. J., this week, 776 of the 7,856,000 U. S. Methodists met for the church's annual general conference. Delegates (1) asked that all Methodists go without dinner June 2 and pray, that day, for the end of Europe's war; (2) refused to tighten church rules concerning divorce; (3) listened to two politicians. Michigan's Governor Luren D. Dickinson regretted that there was too much beer-drinking and bingo-playing, not enough morals, in the U. S. Texas' Rep. Martin Dies said the only thing that could save democracy in the U. S. was a "good," old-fashioned religious revival."

Younger delegates protested against Dies' appearance as a speaker at the conference.

Science

Achievements.

Science this week announced it had learned how to:

1. Look inside solid metal. At the American Physical Society meeting, at Washington, three Johns Hopkins University researchers reported a double-crystal spectrometer which, operating on the principle of the X-ray, shows the patterns of circles that make up the inner crystalline structure of the metals.

2. Make a mountain out of a pin-point. To the American Physical Society, a Radio Corporation of America scientist described a new microscope that can magnify an inch to half a mile.

In Short

Killed: 7,200 persons in auto accidents in the U. S. during the first quarter of 1940, 7% more than for the same quarter last year.

Resigned: Homer Martin, former Baptist preacher and former president of CIO'S United Automobile Workers, as head of the AFL-affiliated UAW union which he led from the CIO branch in a 1939 feud.

Indicted: The Western Union Telegraph Company and 18 individuals, on charges of disseminating horse racing information in violation of lottery laws, by a Chicago federal grand jury; 29 persons, nine companies, two unions and a trade association, by a Seattle grand jury, as a part of the U. S. government's drive against high building costs.

Died: Luisa Tetrazzina, Italian soprano; Joseph A. Pasternack, radio orchestra conductor.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, May 5.

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a very promising and propitious one, with the forecast of the fulfillment of many elements of ambition and high purpose. These may lie in the direction of originality and unusual creative work, in which initiative and enterprise will gain the support and friendship of those of influence and social position.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a successful year, with a rich fruition of many phases of heart's desire. Literary or artistic talents may win the hearty support and friendship of those in high places, so develop these with ardor and confidence, and then push to advanced goals.

A child born on this day may be versatile, with talent in intellectual or cultural avenues of expression, probably excelling in the professions and attaining conspicuous position by its noble, expansive and generous nature.

For Monday, May 6.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a day of many-sided developments, with business as well as personal relations much in the foreground. The mental as well as emotional incitements are strong for action, with a sound determination to put over all manner of programs. These may have the support and solid endorsement of elders or old institutions. There may be many pitfalls and loopholes for duplicity, but stability and good judgment prevail.

Those whose birthday it is have the promise of a year of splendid achievements and gratifications, both business and personal, with emotional, artistic and social aspirations attained. Elders, those in power, possibly relatives or those in public place may show signs of solid co-operation and tokens of trust and preferment. Friendship or romance for the young looms large, but beware of snares.

A child born on this day may be brilliantly talented, versatile, have notable social or artistic traits, being suave, tactful and magnetic.

Mrs. McCarter Has Program Given Before Society

Mrs. J. B. McCarter of Crestline was the guest speaker last evening at a meeting of the Lucretia Hedges Missionary society of the First Methodist church at the home of Mrs. Ray Osbun, 495 Woodward avenue. Mrs. Roma Campbell was the program chairman, and she had Mrs. Blaine Johnson read an article on Christian citizenship, entitled, "The Cause and Cure of War Conferences." Miss Ethel McIlvaine gave an article from the Women's Home Mission magazine, and read a poem, "The Last Heritage," a tribute to mothers. During the musical portion of the program, Miss Virginia Osbun played the piano solo, "Valse Charmante," The Harmony Trio, composed of the Misses Marjorie Walker, Peggy Jolley and Wilma Camp, accompanied by Mrs. Elsie Ireland, sang, "Love's Old Sweet Song," "Mother Machree" and "My Buddy."

Mrs. Campbell led the closing prayer, and the hostesses then served refreshments. Mrs. Harold Mansfield will entertain the society at her home, 54 Sturges avenue, on June 7, the 60th anniversary of Womens Home Missions.

CHAPTER XXXIV

"You'll—you will have to go now, Eric," Elaine said, her hand now on the doorknob. "And I'm sorry. If I could look at it the way you do I'd tell Melvyn and ask him to release me from my promise. As it is . . ."

Eric nodded and his eyes were filled with understanding. "Very well, Elaine. If that's the way you want it, I can say nothing more. And—and don't bother to feel sorry for me. I guess, frankly, that I was never worthy of a girl like you. I'm leaving New York today for a trip through the Panama Canal to Hawaii. I have the tickets in my pocket. I — I bought them hoping that you and I could be married and sail this afternoon on our honeymoon. But. . . .' He smiled again as he walked slowly across the room.

For a moment after the door closed softly behind him, Elaine stood stock-still, then sat quietly on the couch, a faraway, dreamy look in her eyes. Then rising swiftly from the couch, she rushed pulled aside the curtain. Eric was across the room to a window and just getting into a taxicab and he turned to look up at the window of the apartment as the cab pulled slowly away from the curb. He smiled and waved his hand gallantly and his lips moved as though he were bidding her a final goodbye.

"Good-bye," Elaine whispered, blowing him a kiss. Tears streaming down her cheeks, she let the curtain fall back into place and walked slowly back towards the couch.

It was over. She would never see him again. Soon, soon she would be Mrs. Melvyn Stuart, while he—he would be aboard the liner bound for distant ports and faraway lands, sailing out of her life—forever!

She whirled around as the door behind her opened and she dabbed her handkerchief hastily at her eyes as Melvyn walked slowly into the room, a nervous smile on his lips.

"Are you ready?" he asked anxiously.

She nodded her head, not daring to trust herself to speak.

He advanced still further into the room and shifted nervously on his feet. Face a dull red, he glanced sharply at her. "Betty told me that Eric was here."

"He's gone, Melvyn," she told him quietly. "He had to leave in a hurry. He—he just came to wish us happiness."

"Really?" He sighed and the ghost of a smile played about his lips. "I'm glad, Elaine. Frankly, I was a little bit worried. After all, you had fancied yourself in love with him for such a long time. I'm glad the infatuation is over."

Tears again welled in her eyes and Elaine glanced down at the wrist watch to hide her grief. "Yes Melvyn, my infatuation is over. But—but we'd better hurry or we'll be late."

He grinned carelessly and sat down on the couch. "I suppose Eric is going back to California."

* * *

Why didn't he forget that Eric even existed? Why didn't he stop repeating his name? Elaine glanced irritably at him, then forced a smile to her lips. "No, Melvyn. Eric is going on a trip to Hawaii."

"Really?" He looked at her with interest. "Well, I suppose that is one way of getting over a broken heart. What boat is he taking?"

She mentioned the name of the liner and added almost impatiently. "It sails this afternoon. Melvyn, we have to hurry. The plane won't wait all day for us."

"Well, I'm glad that some one realizes that." Jane declared from the door. "Good heavens, Melvyn, a person would think that you didn't want to marry Elaine."

"Of course I want to marry her." Melvyn contradicted, walking over to the table and picking up a copy of the "New York Times." "Any man would want to marry her," he remarked, shuffling through the pages of the newspaper. "I just had an idea though. Perhaps Elaine and I would have more fun if we took the same boat Eric's taking. Ah, here it is. Goes on the Jackson. Sails at one-thirty from pier twelve, stops at—nope, it isn't stopping at China."

Elaine heaved a sigh of relief and picked up her purse. For a moment she had been afraid that she would have to see Eric again—but this time as another man's wife.

Jane's voice was richly laden with sarcasm as she marched across the room and grasped him by the arm. "You're coming along with me now, brother dear. You've stalled long enough. What must Elaine be thinking? For months you've been begging her to marry you and now when the time comes you find a thousand and one different reasons for delaying the whole thing."

"Minister, here we come!" Melvyn sang out, taking Elaine's arm and marching her through the door. A few minutes later he grinned down at her as the limousine that Clara had lent them for the trip to the church rolled smoothly on. "Happy, Elaine?"

She nodded, wishing he would guess that she didn't want to talk. She sighed. Of course, Melvyn was happy. He loved her and was going to marry her. Naturally he would be jubilant.

"I'm very happy, Melvyn," she told him stiffly, conscious of a burning sensation in her cheeks. "Why shouldn't I be? You're the man I love."

He nodded complacently and settled back on the seat. "I'm glad to hear that."

His dry manner of speaking confused her and Elaine glanced at him curiously. But nothing of what he was thinking showed on his face and she shook her head, puzzled. She wished, suddenly, that Betty and the others had piled into the car with them instead of following in a taxicab. If—if only some one were in the car with them, some one who would talk and laugh and shake her out of her moodiness. But no one was with her except the man she was going to marry, and he—he. . . .

* * *

She became aware suddenly that they had been driving over ten minutes. She glanced out at the street and her eyes grew puzzled as she saw shimmering in the distance the blue waters of the Hudson.

"Melvyn!" she exclaimed, grasping his arm. "Where are we going?"

"Where are you going?" he asked, teasingly. He sighed, and suddenly his lighthearted air vanished, to be replaced by an expression of deep thought.

"I'm—I'm taking you to Eric."

"Eric!" Not daring to believe her ears, Elaine repeated his name over and over again, conscious of a dull pounding of her heart, of sudden hope dissipating the gloom and depression of a moment ago. She laid a trembling hand on his. "But—but why, Melvyn?"

China is no place for you," he told her curtly. "Besides, I have my work to do there. I couldn't spend my time taking care of you or anything like that. It wouldn't be the sort of life for any girl, Elaine. It. . . ." He made an impatient gesture. "Oh, what's the use of lying? You love Eric, Elaine. Everything about you tells me that. Your tears when I came into your room after Eric left, the way you trembled, the paleness of your face. You don't want to marry me—you never did. And so—well, I love you enough to want to make you happy. That's why I'm taking you to Eric."

"Melvyn!" With a happy smile Elaine threw both her arms about his neck and kissed him gratefully. "Melvyn, I'm so happy. So—so. . . ." Before she could say another word tears of joy streamed down her cheeks. Embarrassed, she reached into her pocketbook for a handkerchief, but before she could manage to open it Melvyn came to her rescue with a large, snowy handkerchief he drew from his pocket.

"Tears, Elaine?" He smiled. "You should be glad. You're going to the man you really love. You should be happy, Elaine. Just think, the next time you cry it will be Eric who dries your tears!"

"After all these years—Paris—oh, well, all right, Hawaii."

Fairly bursting with excitement, Betty Gordon rushed about on the liner's broad deck as, with many a hoot of its deep-throated whistle and amid cheers of the milling crowd, the great ship eased slowly from the pier. Her eyes flashed as she turned to Elaine.

"There," she cried triumphantly, "I told you that some day I would be going to Paris—I mean Hawaii."

Elaine Warburton did not answer. Enfolded by Eric's strong arm, she stood beside him at the rail of the boat, her head resting upon his shoulder, her eyes riveted upon his handsome face.

"For all the days of our life we will be grateful to him," Eric said softly, nodding down towards Melvyn Stuart who stood with Clara and Jane on the dock below.

"Always," Elaine murmured, blowing a kiss down at the young surgeon. She turned to Eric again, cheeks crimson, eyes dancing with joy. "Eric, I'm so happy."

Betty sniffed disapprovingly as Elaine seemed to disappear into Eric's hug. It was disgusting, the way people kissed in public. Well, they would be married by the captain this evening and then she could forget that she was supposed to be chaperoning them.

* * *

She suddenly felt ashamed of herself. She was terrible, begrudging them a kiss. After all, they had done so much for her. If Elaine hadn't joined Eric on the boat she would never had had the nerve to sail away without her father's permission — and without money or clothes!

And then, suddenly, she wasn't ashamed of herself—But of Elaine. The girl was such a silly thing. There she was, thinking about an idiotic thing called love. . . .

When soon—soon they would be in Paris—oh, well, darn the war—in Hawaii. Paris could wait.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Set the little bean at rest about your ever-loving niece. Auntie Madge," she said airily. "She will have showered, dressed, breakfasted, and steeled her soul for the worst by the time Jove and his thunderbolts arrive. Where do you want me to await the audience, in the library?"

"You will stay right here in this room with Noel to take care of you until I myself come for you," I went on.

"Let us hope you don't have to bring me back again, a wilted and crushed lily," she mocked, and her eyes, though a bit too brilliant, I thought, showed no hint of fear or bitterness.

"You'll come back with flags waving," I told her, fervently hoping that I was being a true prophet. Now, if you and Noel will give me your breakfast orders, I'll have Katie get them ready. Just ring her on the house telephone five minutes before your're ready."

"Do you hear, Noel?" Mary sighed rapturously. "Breakfast in our rooms! The lap of luxury, I calls it."

"See that you don't linger in it too long." I admonished her, smiling. "I want you ready to come immediately when I call for you."

"You won't have to wait a split second," she said extravagantly, and I went away upon the pledge, the memory of her gallant smile and brilliant eyes going with me.

I found Lillian in the library, competently removing all extraneous small objects from it to my small study adjoining.

"There!" she said, holding aloft a Chinese figurine as I entered. "I think this is the last danger point."

"Danger point?" I repeated blankly.

"Did you ever see Phil Verrizen in action when he is excited over anything?" she asked whimsically. "It's a question of women and children first to the lifeboats, and all fragile things put out of reach."

I laughed, and looked over the room appraisingly.

"You've made it perfect for rehearsal purposes," I said. "Will you help me move some furniture around, please? Fortunately, none of the big pieces has to be moved. I just want to get the stage set according to my script. You know, subconsciously I put my first scene in a room just like this library, with the same entrances and exits."

"Rather uncanny, lady," she said with a grin. "I'll be with you just as soon as I put this little doo-dad in a safe place."

She hurried into my little study and came directly back. Then for several minutes we altered the places of chairs and small tables, until the room was in perfect condition for the rehearsal, needing no change except for the placing of the few properties needed for rehearsal which I know would be brought with the members of the cast.

"Have you time now to draw a long breath?" Lillian asked when we had finished.

"For several of them," I said as I sat down in the nearest chair. "Thanks to you, I haven't a single thing in my mind until Philip Verrizen arrives. Noel will keep Mary in their quarters until I call for her, so I can sit here comfortably until the cavalcade sweeps in."

"Good!" she commended. "Now, tell me one thing. Is Mary going to have nerve enough to go through this test today without breaking? Please believe me, this isn't an idle question. I have a good reason for asking it."

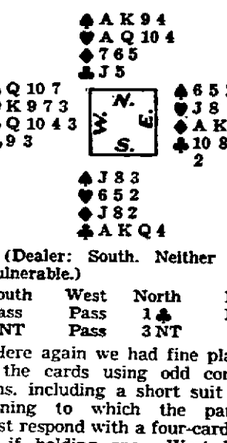
"The Authority on Authorities"

CONSIDER WHAT'S LEFT

Along in the play of the hand, suppose one defender has already shown a good deal of high card strength, such as, perhaps, an ace-king. If he made no bid of any kind during the auction, it is quite likely that he has no more high-card strength. What ever other important honors are out of sight are probably in his partner's hand. If you figure it out that way, you will do well to plan the remainder of the play on that presumption.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♣	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Here again we had fine players of the cards using odd conventions, including a short suit club opening to which the partner must respond with a four-card major if holding one. West knew their bidding habits as well as they themselves, and realized North might even have two four-card majors which he wouldn't show if South's response denied having one. West therefore led his diamond 3, and four tricks were rattled off pronto.

When West then shifted to his heart 3, South did some thinking. Feeling that East, with an ace-king, would probably have overcalled the original 1-Club if he also had a king or queen, but that he might have a jack, South took only the single finesse, playing the heart Q, and then set about to squeeze West. He cashed two spade tops, then four clubs. On playing the last, he also had a card in each major, North the spade 9 and heart A-10. West had to throw his spade Q, making South's J good, or break up his heart K-9, East holding the heart J. His goose was cooked. He tossed the spade, so declarer took in the spade J and the heart A to make contact.

Your Week-End Lesson.

If you decide to lead spades against a 4-Heart contract, what card would you select for your opening, and which would you plan to lead next if the first wins the trick, from these holdings?

GERMANS BOAST OF SEA VICTORY IN NAMSOS RAID

Claim Big British Battleship Sunk by Dive Bombers; Say British Spiritless.

ence the high command felt the information should be delayed no longer, it was said.

German authorities said that numerous hits were scored on the battleship during the attack, which the communique said was carried out by dive bombers, but it was thought that one bomb must have struck the magazine.

That alone, it was said, could have caused the flames which were reported to have shot up over 1,500 feet into the air.

Authorized sources speculated whether the commander of the British expeditionary force to Norway was aboard the warship, and were anxious for an announcement from Churchill.

German authorities saw in the reported feat positive proof that the Nazi air force can achieve mastery of the sea.

Jubilant because no German planes or lives were lost in the action, they intimated that yesterday's success was but the beginning and that similar startling news might come today. There also were intimations that German attention now was centering particularly upon The Netherlands and Belgium.

According to German versions the British - French flight from Namsos was disastrous. Allied troops were said to have left behind valuable supplies and to have forgotten to take along one British journalist.

The British troops in Norway showed no fighting spirit whatever, the Germans declared.

Norse Resistance to Germans Collapses.

(By Associated Press)

STOCKHOLM—Organized Norwegian resistance to the German invasion collapsed today in the face of an Allied retreat from all but the northernmost section of Norway.

Alone and encircled, "with only enough ammunition for one day," the Norwegian central command asked Germany for an armistice, acknowledging the Nazis as masters of Norway and bitterly accusing the Allies of "incomprehensible action" in retreating without proper notice to the embattled Norwegian forces.

The fugitive Norwegian government, which alone has authority to sue for peace, formally was reported fleeing into the mountainous north country where British, French and Norwegian forces still are trying to dislodge a German contingent around Narvik, arctic ore port.

There were unsubstantiated reports that British fleet units were now engaged in a heavy bombardment of Narvik to cover the landing of some expert Franch Alpine light artillery units charged with the task of eliminating high-perched machine-gun nests built by the Germans on the hills around Narvik.

It was indicated the Allies were now making an intensified drive to gain complete control of Narvik in the interests of establishing a base there

(The French war ministry announced that the Allies had surrounded a force of between 7,000 and 7,500 Germans at Narvik, and that the Germans' position was desperate.)

Whereabouts of the British expeditionary force which sailed away from Namsos Thursday was unknown.

One British officer, just before the embarkation, said the British were bound for England.

Though the main Norwegian resistance had collapsed, there was evidence of some continuing guerrilla fighting against the invaders.

Reports reaching Stockholm said one Norwegian volunteer force of 140 men had ambushed a German detachment of 400 about 100 miles south of Roros killing 115, wounding 60 and taking many others prisoner.

But the fight was over for most Norwegians and disillusioned soldiers gave up their arms on the Steinkjer front, allowing mechanized and motorized Nazi legions to pour into bomb-battered Namsos in the wake of the retreating Allies.

Word of the Norwegian surrender came from Col. O. B Getz, acting commander in the central area.

"The British and French—for reasons unknown to us — have given up helping us in our fight and have withdrawn their troops from Namsos," he said.

"We stand alone against the entire German war machine, already outflanked and encircled on the line which the British and French should be holding . . . without aid from the outside . . . with only enough ammunition for one day . . . without planes and other necessary war materials.

"It was an incomprehensible action on the part of the British and French, without notifying me, to lay open my flanks in the rear so I was cut off from any possible retreat toward Mosjoen."

(The British war office issued a statement declaring there was no foundation for the statement that the Norwegian commander-in-chief was not informed of the Allied decision to evacuate the Trondheim area or that he has negotiated an armistice.)

Fleets Concentrate In Mediterranean Sea.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt—(INS)—Reports of an Italian fleet concentration in the eastern Mediterranean reached Alexandria today on the heels of arrival of a powerful Anglo-French battle fleet.

The reports could not be confirmed, but British spokesmen here emphasized that new Allied naval precautions in the Mediterranean denoted full readiness to meet any hostile move by Germany or Italy.

At the same time Britain's strategic base at Malta experienced its first complete blackout. Egypt, too, squared off for possible warlike action and the Egyptian border facing Italian Libya was patrolled by a "desert air watch" for the first time.

A battleship sailed into Alexandria harbor accompanied by cruisers and destroyers, submarines and a depot ship. Sea planes rode at anchor with their bomb racks loaded.

U. S.-Italian Talks Raise London Interest.

LONDON —(INS)— New reports reached London today that Premier Mussolini has conveyed to United States Ambassador William Phillips Italy's "essential requirements" in the Mediterranean sphere.

These reports stated that in turn Phillips informed the British and French governments of his "price of peace" in that area.

Authoritative British circles declined to confirm the reports, merely reiterating that the Anglo-French attitude in the Mediterranean is "well known" to Italy.

Italian circles in London would have nothing to say concerning the Phillips report.

"What makes the taste of the whole episode more bitter," the Guardian said, "is that is follows so much shallow optimism, not to say boasting."

Law, whose father, Bonar Law, led the conservative party under Asquith, warned sternly against "widespread and highly dangerous delusions that the war is going to win itself without loss or sacrifice, that time is on our side and that Hitler has missed the bus."

His reference to Hitler "missing the bus" was a direct slap at Chamberlain, who used the phrase in a speech April 4, five days before Germany invaded Norway and Denmark.

The government critics were put at a disadvantage, however, by the declaration of Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, that the cabinet would put up a united front against "political scalp hunters."

Air Defense Halts English Coast Raids.

LONDON —(INS)— British defense planes and anti-aircraft guns fought off two German raids near the coasts of England today.

Shortly after midnight heavy gunfire was heard off the southeast coast. An air battle ensued between the Germans and British with the sky lighted by huge searchlight batteries.

Heavy firing was also heard well out to sea. Eye-witnesses said they saw great flashes of bursting shells and streaks of light from tracer bullets used in aerial machine-gun fire.

A second attempted raid was reported headed off near Britain's northeast coast when a group of unidentified planes believed to be German were heard approaching land.

the Germans whenever possible.

Dagens Nyheter said that Norwegian troops aided by Swedish and Finnish volunteers were attacking the Germans in the Rena area of the Oester valley, 100 miles south of Roeros and only 85 miles north of Oslo.

Dispatches reported that the Allies had withdrawn about 16,000 men from Namsos by land as well as sea. Positions had been quietly prepared in advance in the Bodoe area, 110 miles south of Narvik and at Mosjoen, 105 miles north of abandoned Namsos.

Mosjoen is a town on the only highway extending from Trondheim and Namsos to Narvik and its ore railroad.

No Surprise.

News that Norwegian troops in the Trondheim area had arranged an armistice with the Germans caused no surprise. It had been taken for granted that all Norwegian troops south of Trondheim would have to surrender sooner or later.

Bitter fighting was reported in the Oester valley, parralleling the Swedish frontier. Though dispatches yesterday had reported that the Germans might take Roeros, it was said that the Norwegians had stopped them several miles to the south.

Norwegian troops retreating northward from the Namsos area were reported to be offering strong resistance to the Germans along the Namsos-Swedish frontier highway.

It was indicated that the Germans were establishing good communications up the Gudbrands valley to Dombaas and thence along the railroad to Trondheim.

scalpel or a butcher knife. The third had the word "Nazi" carved across the chest in five-inch letters. There were no identifying clues The nude victims, 30 to 40 years old, had been dead an estimated six weeks to two months.

The three cars arrived here April 21, the same day they were shipped from Struthers, suburban Youngstown, where railroad officials said they had stood idle in interchange yards for two days after 15 months in Youngstown yards. Found near one body were charred scraps of a Youngstown newspaper dated Dec. 11, 1939.

Fire Probed.

Investigators plan to center their search at Youngstown where a mysterious fire broke out in the railroad yards Feb. 28. District Attorney Andrew T. Park said it was possible the killer, who has burned several victims, started the blaze in the hope the gruesome evidence would be destroyed.

Deputy Coroner Anthony Sappo found the mad butcher angle confused by discovery of the word "Nazi" on one body which he said "indicates a possibility there might be some secret society, opposed to Nazis, connected with the case."

Merylo reported a bloody print of a "good-sized" shoe found on wrappings in one of the cars apparently was that of the slayer's and proved for the first time that the butcher was a man and not a woman as some suspected. He also considered the inverted "Z" in the carved "Nazi" as "showing the sex-fied killed is not educated and probably is a fellow who rides the trains, roaming the country."

Bimelech Still Cinch to Cop Kentucky Derby

Undefeated Pride of Col. Bradley Top Favorite to Take Home $60,000 Purse.

By GAYLE TALBOT

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(AP)—Once again the nation's pulse will skip a few beats late this afternoon while the horses go pounding around the Churchill Downs oval in the 66th running of the Kentucky Derby.

At about 5:45 (EST) the field of eight or nine beauties will break from the starting gate and set off on the mile and one-quarter grind that brings fame and a garland of roses for the winner and more than $60,000 to the happy owner.

The thousands who have swarmed into this pleasant town to witness the three-year-old classic faced a cool, cloudy day—but the weather man said they would be spared of rain.

Unless a serious mistake has been made, the winning steed in the big race will be Bimelech, the undefeated pride and joy of Col. E. R. Bradley, old and ailing owner of four previous Derby champions. The money will be poured in on him today until he pays a ridiculously small price—if he wins.

The second choice almost surely will be Dit, the unheralded gelding that won last week's Wood Memorial, while the coast entry, Mioland, likely will close as a strong third in the wagering. A bushel of small bets is expected to go down on both these horses.

There are, of course, a few highly vocal dissenters who honestly believe that Dit or Mioland will outrun the Bradley colt in that closing charge down the stretch. The riders of those two horses, in fact, are sublimely certain that they have the race between them.

Come to think of it, there is something a trifle silly about making any horse the favorite that Bimelech will be today. Too many things can happen. Any horse can get a poor start or a dumb ride, or both.

* * *

Providing there are no scratches before post time, the others trying to take Bimelech's measure are Gallahadion, Pictor, Roman, Sirroco, True Star and Royal Man. Sirroco was due to make the effort only if the track was lightning fast. True Star was believed to be in there only for his owner's amazement. Pictor has a few staunch supporters.

The brutal weather undoubtedly has cut down the crowd, which had been expected to exceed last year's 80,000. Some stayed home, too, because they were given to understand that Bimelech had it sewed up and that the race would be run only as a matter of form.

Heroes and Goats

(By International News Service)

HEROES—Jim Tabor, Boston Red Sox infielder, whose big bat practically beat the St. Louis Browns single-handed, Bill Posedel, Boston Bees pitcher, whose hitting and hurling gave the Bees their second win of the year.

GOATS—Lon Warneke, St. Louis Cardinal hurler, who weakened to allow the Bees to win; John Whitehead, St. Louis Brown pitcher, who allowed the Red Sox to score the winning run in the tenth.

Of the three largest moose trophies taken by non-resident hunters during the 1939 season, one had a spread of 77 in., the second 76½ in., and the third 74½ in., says a bulletin of the U. S. Never put your rod in a case if it is wet. This wouldn't hurt if you took it out as soon as you returned home; but chances are you'll be so tired after the day's sport that you'll forget to do it. Until the next time you want to use it, that is—and by then it may be rusted.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

LOUISVILLE —(U.P.)— For a long time I've been wondering just what people meant by "horse sense." Now I know. Horses have sense enough not to read what is written about them in the sports pages.

* * *

If Bimelech had read 1-50 of what has been written about him in the last few weeks he probably would be better fit for a glue bottle than the Kentucky derby. But Bimey hasn't the least idea of the load he is going to carry in the big race at Churchill owns this afternoon just after the bands play "My Old Kentucky Home." And I don't mean just the 126 pounds that will be on his back.

* * *

Bimey will be carrying the reputations of almost the entire collection of expert talent assembled here. He will be carrying the hopes of his aged owner, Col. E. R Bradley, who has a deep rooted desire to see his colors in the winner's circle for the fifth time. And he is carrying an unestimated amount of the taxpayer's money, for anybody who bets on the derby and doesn't bet on Bimelech should run, not walk, to the nearest alienist.

But because Bimey can't read, he won't know about these things and will just be out for another afternoon gallop.

The composure of Bimelech as he stands in his barn is undoubtedly balanced by the jitters that a young fellow, Freddie Smith, is suffering right now.

Smith is the gnome who'll be in the saddle when the Bradley beauty goes to the post, and unlike Bimelech young Mr. Smith can read. And he must have read, these last two or three days, just what is expected of him and his horse.

Some critics have even gone so far as to say that if Bimelech is beaten, Smith, and not any of his four-legged opponents, will beat him. This puts it right up to Mr. Smith to keep out of Bimelech's way. Everybody is agreed that all Bimelech needs to win easily is to be allowed to run his own race without undue human interference.

* * *

The chances are, however, that Freddie won't give Bimelech any the worst of it. He may not be the rider that Buddy Haas and Georgie Woolf and Lester Balaski are, but he can't be so bad either, because when you come right down to it his record is every bit as good as Bimelech.

* * *

Bimelech has raced eight times and won eight times, and it was Mr. Smith who was in the saddle. He knows Bimelech's every whim and this is said to be very important, although I can't vouch for it having never ridden a derby horse in my life.

Boston Red Sox Outhitting Yankees In Home Run Derby

THE early season setbacks of the Yankees, the surge of the Brooklyn Dodgers and the slow start of the stingless Boston Bees have all contributed in keeping anyone but the immediate family interested in the condition of the Boston Red Sox.

* * *

But the Cronin clouters clamored for attention yesterday on the wings of some real power displayed while whacking out a ten-inning, 9-8 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

* * *

The Sox collected four home runs. Jim Tabor got two, Ted Williams and Manager Joe Cronin one each.

That production was one home run more than the New York Yankees could manage in their 8-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The Red Sox slugging put them into first place in the league—a position filled most of last year by their arch rivals, the Yankees.

Now, up Boston way at least, there is a distinct feeling that the last year contenders are going to be this year's champions.

* * *

The Yankees managed to pull up to the .500 mark with a typical 3-4 victory over the White Sox. The victory gave Marvin Breuer his first big league victory, though he allowed 10 hits.

* * *

In the only other game played in the majors, the Boston Bees won their second game of the season behind the fine hurling and timely hitting of Bill Posedel—a 4-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Rain and cold weather put a crimp in the other contests.

Indians Show Experts Up

Scribes Picked Indianapolis For Fourth Place.

(By Associated Press)

It's much too early for any rash statements on the American Association race, but the battling Indianapolis Indians are making the pre-season "experts" look pretty silly right now.

* * *

The Indians were picked for fourth place in the poll of the scribes, 14 of the writers designating them for no higher than fifth place. But Indianapolis, showing a fine disdain for such opinions, is tied with Minneapolis for the top notch.

* * *

Yesterday the Indians smacked the Millers for the second successive day, Pete Sivess setting the slugging home town nine down with five hits for a 3 to 1 decision.

Kansas City remained a half game off the pace of the co-leaders by whipping Columbus, 4 to 3.

Louisville moved into undisputed possession of fourth place with a 4 to 3 victory over St. Paul in 12 innings.

Toledo's game with Milwaukee was rained out.

Derringer Out For Third Win

Goes on Mound Against Phils This Afternoon.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Paul Derringer was out after his third victory of the season for the Reds today, against the Philadelphia Phils, hoping that the weather man undergoes a change of heart.

* * *

Big Paul was shifted into the lineup after chill breezes prevented a game with the sixth place Phils yesterday. It was the second postponement here in as many days because of cold weather.

* * *

Kirby Higbe, who pitched one of three Philadelphia victories in 22 starts over Cincinnati last season, was called by Manager Doc Prothro.

The delayed game was set for July as part of a double-header.

Despite temperature of 36, the coldest May 3 of record here, both teams worked out at Crosley field.

Favorites Advance In Tennis Tourney

GAMBIER—(AP)—Favorites advanced without major casualty today in the fifth annual Ohio high school invitational tennis tournament sponsored by Kenyon college.

* * *

Bud Plumb of Cincinnati Hughes led the singles parade into the semi-finals with a straight set victory over Lou Elliott of Washington Court House, who eliminated eight-seeded Avis Franklin of Lima Central yesterday. Plumb's winning score was 6-1, 6-3.

* * *

Other favored survivors of early round play included Defending Champion Marshall Chambers of Cincinnati Walnut Hills, Reiter of Dayton Fairview, English of Columbus university, Molli of Bellaire, Robinson of Youngstown, Rayen and Barker of New Philadelphia.

WANTS BALL GAMES

Edward Danski, manager of the Lorain Bittners, announced today that his team would like to book a game with any Class A softball team in Mansfield or vicinity on a home to home basis. Danski may be reached at 1048 West 20th street Lorain.

MANSFIELD BEATEN

DETROIT—Fritzie Zivic, 139, Pittsburgh, outpointed Mansfield Driskell, 146½, Detroit, (10).

Infielder Hurt By Line Drive Off Hale's Bat

Oscar Grimes Misses Death By Inch as Ball Crushes Bones In Face.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Cleveland Indians will be without the services of Infielder Oscar Grimes for at least two months, physicians said today after X-ray examinations showed his nose and bones in the left side of his face crushed by a batted ball.

Dr. E. W. Maloy, who set the bones, expressed belief Grimes' eyesight would not be impaired. The ball struck just under his eye and Dr. Maloy said if it had hit an inch higher Grimes would have been killed.

The accident occurred during batting practice yesterday as a liner off Sammy Hale's bat struck the 23-year-old Minerva (O.) player as he stood in the infield. The scheduled game with the Senators was called because of cold weather, but Manager Oscar Vitt ordered the drill anyway.

Mrs. Grimes booked passage on an airliner from Cleveland today to join her husband. He is expected to remain in a hospital at least a month.

Grimes, the team's jack-of-all-trades, has been playing first base in place of Hal Trosky, called to Cleveland by the illness of his son. Last year Grimes played every position in the infield, batting .269 in 119 games.

Vitt said Beau Bell, reserve outfielder, would play first base today, with Al Milnar slated to pitch against Ken Chase. Bob Feller will hurl against Boston tomorrow.

The injury to Grimes cancelled the team's best insurance policy against injuries. The Ohio youth can play any position and is rated one of the club's most valuable assets. Several bids for him were turned down last winter.

The injury was the second bad break for Grimes this year. Early in February he underwent an operation to correct an ailing knee. He was late reaching camp and broke into the lineup for the first time Wednesday when he replaced Trosky.

TRACK TO BE FAST

LOUISVILLE—(INS)—The sun shone brightly over Louisville this morning as thousands prepared for the 66th running of the Kentucky Derby. With the forecast for "fair and warmer" and the temperature rising this afternoon, a fast track for the big race was believed assured.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—Rumor foundry: St. Louis wires say unless the Cards are in a strong contending position July 4, Ray Blades will get a nice large dose of fresh air. . . . Prof. Rabbit Maranville has been added to the faculty of Ray Doan's traveling baseball school. . . . Referee Arthur Donovan, (who has been jeered by 60,000) was cheered by 400 stand uppers at a testimonial dinner last night.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Warren W. Brown, Chicago Herald-American: "Phil Wrigley must have designed those new Cub uniforms (they look like vests without sleeves) as an economy measure . . . as long as our pitchers haven't any arms, Wrigley feels they have no sleeves.

REFORMED

Umpire Willie Wilson, who drew a knife on Texas league ball players., has tossed away his barlow—even prunes his nails with his teeth now . . . Jack Hurley, who piloted old Billy Petrolie to fame and riches, thinks he has another "Fargo Express" coming along in George Nyberg. Canadian socker who has won 26 of 28 pro fights . . . Roller hockey will bow into the Hershey, Pa., rink (one of the finest in the country) next week . . . The Brooklyn Trust company regretfully denies it owns the Dodgers—only acts as trustee for the half interest held by the Ebbets estate.

THE OLD COLLEGE TRY

Jess Neely is instilling the old time spirit into the boys down at Rice . . . during the last spring practice game, a line toughie took a punch at an official and laid him among the sweet peas for a few moments . . . seems the guy ruled a touchdown when the lineman didn't think the opposition got across.

YOUR GUESS

The b'way columns today have Hannah Williams Dempsey (the cheerful little earfull) resuming her theatrical career (a) as a warbler in Billy Rose's Aquacade; (b) ditto at the Ritz hotel in Beantown; (c) ditto at Ben Narden's Riviera.

AND A GOOD PROP, TOO

In Boston the other day photographers asked Joe Cronin to pose leaning on Jimmy Double-X . . . "No," quipped Cronin, "I'm leaning on Foxx enough as it is."

TODAY'S TIP

Don't give up on the Dodgers As likely first place lodgers.

BUDDY BAER STILL NOT REAL THREAT TO TITLE

NEW YORK — (UP) — The kindest thing that could be said about Heavyweight Buddy Baer today was that he has graduated into the "improved" class. As a potential threat to Joe Louis' title he still rated no better than "kindergarten" opposition.

Baer, slow and apparently as inept as ever, won a technical knockout over Nathan Mann, New Haven trial horse, in the seventh round of a scheduled 12-round bout at Madison Square Garden last night. Baer weighed 249, Mann, 188.

TRACK TEAMS BATTLE IN NCO CONFERENCE MEET

ASHLAND — Five track teams are here today to participate in the North Central Ohio conference track meet. Marion Harding and Shelby are expected to wage a battle for the 1940 championship. The list of clubs in the meet was cut to five this week when Galion withdrew after the unexpected death of Richard Danner, star student.

STOPS GEORGE GANO

PITTSBURGH—Lloyd Marshall, 183, Cleveland, stopped George Gano, 164, Trenton, N. J., (2).

TASTE TELLS— but not ALL

● Taste means a lot in beer—it brings new friends . . . but good beer also must have other qualities . . . there must be no after effects.

KOERBER'S PILSENER

has taste—a perfect taste... it also has age, body, aroma—food value—all in high degree.

IT WILL

—Refresh and nourish you
—Pep you up, not over-stimulate
—Help, not interfere with the functions of your system

IT WON'T

—Leave a bad taste
—Cause you to overeat
—Build fatty tissue
—Give you a headache

STOCK PRICES ARE IRREGULAR IN MART TODAY

Steel Issues Turn Down In Routine Trading; Ohio Oil at New High.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Trading was routine on the stock market today and prices fluctuated irregularly.

Steel shares turned down fractionally. Bethlehem at its low of 84 was off ½ and U. S. Steel 59⅝ also off ½. Operations of several leading steel centers are scheduled to increase next week.

Automobile, aircraft, railroad, mercantile and oil shares were irregular. Several special issues made new highs. Rayonier preferred, Crown Zellerbach, Sunoil Atlantic Refining, and Ohio Oil made new highs. U. S. Leather Priod preferred made a high at 74 up 2 and Norfolk & Western at 225½ up 1.

Several issues made new lows, including Loew's, Underwood Elliott Fisher, and Commercial Investment Trust. Montgomery Ward equaled its low for the year, as did Socony-Vacuum.

Deanna Durbin's seventh picture "It's A Date" with an Hawaiian locale, is said to have many outstanding musical scores in the production. This comedy drama opens today at the Ohio theater with Walter Pidgeon, Kay Francis and Lewis Howard in the supporting cast. Deanna's songs are first passed by a "jury" of five before put into the film.

Brent and Oberon Teamed.

" 'Til We Meet Again," which opens today at the Madison theater, is a romantic tale of a man and a woman for whom there was no tomorrow. Set against the brilliant background of a trans-Pacific liner, the story tells of the shipboard love affair between a girl who knows that she has but a few months to live and a man who is being brought back to San Quentin to pay the death penalty. Merle Oberon and George Brent play the leads. "An Angel from Texas" with an all-star cast is the co-feature.

Comedy Films.

Beginning Sunday at the Majestic theater will be shown "Half a Sinner," starring Heather Angel, Constance Collier and John King. Comedy, fast action and romance are found in this adventure story of a young school teacher who wants excitement. As a second feature there will be "Henry Goes Arizona," with Frank Morgan, Virginia Weidler, Guy Kibbee, Slim Summerville and Douglas Fowley in the cast.

Two Favorites.

Robert Taylor, Greer Garson and Lew Ayres are starred in "Remember?" which begins Sunday at the Ritz theater. This is a gay comedy of married life, brightly modern, with New York as its actual background. Wed in haste, the marriage of Bob and Greer is threatened by misunderstandings. Too proud to admit they are still in love, they are divorced, but through many twists of circumstances, are given another chance. The co-feature is "Destry Rides Again," starring Marlene Dietrich and James Stewart.

Higgins Family in Nevada.

"Grandpa Goes to Town," starring the Gleason family, James, Lucille and Russell, with Harry Davenport in the title role, the Gleasons are again in the character parts of the Higgins family with their ever present domestic problems. This time they're in a ghost town in Nevada where they are tricked into buying a ramshackle old hotel.
